NASABA OVERVIEW

Founded in 2003, the North American South Asian Bar Association (“NASABA”) is the umbrella organization for twenty seven regional South Asian bar associations and is the principal voice for legal issues in the South Asian community. NASABA chapters serve local communities in the United States and Canada, with their members leading and practicing in top law firms, government agencies, academia, and public interest groups. With over 6,000 members, NASABA provides a powerful support network for South Asians in the legal community. NASABA's Annual Convention, now in its seventh year, has rapidly developed a reputation as the premier event for law firms, corporations, vendors, and legal organizations looking to gain exposure to the South Asian legal community.

NASABA IN BOSTON

In this era of globalization, NASABA has become an international force, providing attorneys in North America and abroad an opportunity to forge connections, networks, and working relationships. With a convention theme of “Making History,” the NASABA 2010 Annual Convention will celebrate the significance that Boston plays in American history to this day, as well as the historical contributions made by the South Asian community to Boston and to North America as a whole. The Convention will be actively promoted in South Asia, Canada, and the United States, and is expected to attract attendees from all of those regions. The Convention will be a global networking opportunity and a chance to meet with leaders of the South Asian legal community. In keeping with our past conventions, we will also have substantial programming aimed at the needs of our members, including panels on career planning, ethnic and gender diversity, international transactions, and other timely legal issues.

Making History

2010 CONVENTION

Over the weekend of June 24-27, 2010, NASABA will hold its Seventh Annual Convention ("Convention") themed "Making History" in Boston, Massachusetts. Boston, known as the "Cradle of Liberty," has a rich tradition of public service and celebrating civil liberties and a well-deserved reputation as sophisticated financial and legal center. The Convention will highlight these varied aspects of the City.

The Convention will feature a variety of seminars, workshops, panel discussions, and networking opportunities, including a gala banquet honoring the South Asian community's most accomplished attorneys. In addition, this year's Convention will feature the first NASABA Diversity Bazaar, an opportunity for corporate legal departments committed to diversity to expand their outside counsel panels and for diverse attorney pitch teams to develop business with these companies. Over the years, the Convention has averaged 400 attendees and given the large South Asian legal community on the East Coast, Boston is poised to be the most successful Convention yet.

SPONSORSHIP

We invite you to become a sponsor of the 2010 Annual Convention. Opportunities include sponsoring the inaugural Diversity Bazaar, sponsoring a specific panel, receptions or keynote event, a la carte options, or sponsoring the Convention as a whole. Sponsors are provided opportunities to establish and deepen relationships with firms and attorneys from across North America and South Asia. In addition to developing a cross border referral network for their clients, sponsors can also share information regarding their services with other professionals.

Sponsorship packages can be tailored to fit individuals, corporations, law firms, and small businesses. The Convention will provide a great opportunity for you to promote your company or law firm, not only to the Convention attendees, but also to the thousands of South Asian lawyers and law students across North America connected through the NASABA network and to gain visibility amongst this emerging community of leaders.

REASONS TO SPONSOR THE EVENT

1. To promote your organization to South Asian legal professionals, an emerging community of talented, motivated and culturally diverse individuals.
2. To promote diversity in the legal community in a highly visible and prestigious forum.
3. To recruit high caliber employees.
4. To brand your organization with a specific legal expertise or cause.
5. To allow NASABA to offer the benefits of the Convention to its members at an affordable price and help fund NASABA events and activities throughout the year in support of diversity, business development, and community service, including through funding for the NASABA Foundation.
6. To support and foster the organizational goals and mission of NASABA.
7. To help promote minority retention, recruitment and networking, and to help NASABA provide these opportunities for junior lawyers.
8. To showcase your firm or company to attorneys from law firms and companies. In addition to attorneys from law firms, past attendees or speakers included general counsel or representatives from Apple, Cisco, Compucredit, Del Monte, Dupont, Sempra Energy, Walmart, Caterpillar, Pfizer, IBM, Arcelor Mittal, Freddie Mac, Microsoft, Motorola, General Electric, Accenture and many others.

NASABA invites you to share its commitment to enhancing opportunities in the legal profession for minority communities through your support for its Annual Convention.
